Mental Health in Placer County

In recent years, more and more people are talking about mental health and breaking the stigma. But sometimes it's still easy to think about the problem that affects others, and not our own. We decided to explore statistics on mental health in Placer County in hopes that we all realize that this issue is closer to home than we often think it is.

Who struggles with mental illness? How many people struggle with mental health challenges? What types of challenges are most common in our community?

Read below to learn more about the various mental health challenges faced by people in our community.

Mental health issues are more common than we might think they are. One in four adults experience mental illness in a given year². This means that in your network of friends or relatives, there may be 4 people you know really well out of your network of 20 that have a mental health concern.

There are varying degrees of severity of these mental health issues. However, there is a high degree of mental health related emergencies that occur. Mood disorders, including depression, are the third leading cause of hospitalization in the nation for adults ages 18-44³.

Mental health issues are also affecting youth at worrisome rates. One out of five youth ages 13-18 live with a mental health condition⁴. The impact of having a mental illness at this young age can be devastating. Approximately fifty percent of students with a mentall illness drop out of high school⁵. Moreover, struggling with mental illness can increase risk taking behavior that can endanger a child's life. Seventy percent of all youth in juvenile justice systems have a mental illness⁵.

Despite the drastic negative effects of leaving a mental illness untreated, about half of youth ages 8-15 with a mental illness received no treatment. In fact, the average delay between onset of symptoms of mental illness and any sort of intervention is from 8-10 years⁵.

In Placer County, up to 28% of 7th graders, 30% of 9th graders, and 34% of 11th graders who participated in the California Healthy Kids Survey (CHKS) at traditional schools have reported having experienced chronic sadness or hopelessness within the past year. These percentages increase at non-traditional schools. Moreover, the rate at which students have considered suicide range from 13% to 28% across schools⁶.

Suicide is the tenth leading cause of death in the US, and at least ninety percent of individuals who die by suicide have an underlying mental illness⁷. Destignatizing mental illness is the first step toward getting people help and potentially saving a life.

If you or anyone you know are having suicidal thoughts, please call the National Suicide Prevention Hotline at (800) 273-TALK.

Featuring NAMI on Campus at Whitney High School School

An example of an organization doing excellent work to destigmatize mental illness in their community is NAMI on Campus at Whitney High School. After attending a training conducted by the National Alliance on Mental Illness (NAMI) and the Placer County Office of Education, the peer counselors at Whitney High School decided they needed to do more to raise campus awareness of mental illness. They therefore founded the Whitney Chapter of NAMI on Campus—a group of high school students dedicated to breaking the stigma and ending the silence.

This group of teenagers have realized how much stigma is attached to mental health issues. Since attending the NAMI training, students have worked tirelessly to destigmatize mental health and make sure that their fellow students are aware of the various people, organizations, and crisis lines available for support. Moreover, they are striving to create a campus culture in which students have a safe space where they feel comfortable reaching out for help. Students at Whitney have realized that due to the unique challenges teenagers face, such as finding social acceptance and the pressures of getting into college, young people need more support. Students founded NAMI on Campus with the aim of providing that support.

In addition to hosting informational meetings about mental health and spreading a message of hope on campus, Whitney NAMI on Campus was instrumental in helping host a weeklong campus event called Each Mind Matters. Throughout this week, Whitney students were encouraged to wear lime-green ribbons to start a dialogue about mental health. Perhaps most importantly, the Whitney Broadcasting Team dedicated their daily broadcast to unpacking the meaning of "stigma," sharing the stories of individuals with lived experience, and encouraging teens struggling with mental health challenges to seek help. This included several PSAs directed and filmed by high school students. These videos can be viewed at http://www.wctv19.com/?p=2511. Each Mind Matters week was a huge part of breaking down the stigma of mental illness. To learn more about the state-wide Each Mind Matters movement, including information on specific mental health challenges, reducing barriers to treatment, creating a supportive work environment and more. visit

The Placer Collaborative Network and the Network of Care commend these amazing students for all the work they have done and continue to do to ensure that Whitney High School is a safe, welcome environment for everyone, no matter what their struggles are. Keep up the good work!

What else is being done?

The Campaign for Community Wellness (CCW) was created in in 2006 by the Placer County Systems of Care in conjunction with the Mental Health Services

Act. The CCW is comprised of various community members, non-profit agencies, school staff members, and more. The CCW is a collaborative effort to build wellness in the community, evaluate community needs, and strengthen the voices of the unserved and underserved to ensure their access to important resources. The CCW aims to support efforts that promote culturally sensitive, efficient, and sustainable mental health resources in the community. The CCW meetings are the last Friday of every month from 10am to 12pm. Learn more at www.campaignforcommunitywellness.org.

Placer Speakers Bureau

The Placer County Speakers Bureau presents inspirational stories of recovery from mental illness to diverse audiences in Placer County. Presenters from the Speakers Bureau are people who have lived those stories and who are leading successful, independent lives in the community. By hosting presentations that can last anywhere from seven minutes to an hour, the Speakers Bureau hopes to help end the stigma surrounding mental illness. Speakers also provide a message of hope and recovery, which can be extremely impactful for any audience members who are fighting their own battles with mental health issues. To learn more about the Speakers Bureau, visit www.placerspeakersbureau.com.

Lighthouse Counseling & Family Resource Center is a non-profit organization with the goal to ensure that every resident of Placer County lives a safe and healthy life. Lighthouse provides a multitude of free resources, including emotional and mental health resources such as individual and group counseling, emotion management, and various support groups. All of the resources at Lighthouse Counseling are 100% free. Visit www.lighthousefrc.org for more information.

Helpful Tips and Tools from the Network of Care

The Placer County Network of Care has several tools that can help you live a healthy life. Read below to learn more about the resources we have that can help you or a loved one cope with mental health issues.

Are You Struggling with Mental Illness?

Are you worried that you are struggling with mental health challenges? There are several tools available at the Network of Care which can help you assess your emotional and mental health. Here are a few that you can explore:

- Are you Depressed?: http://bit.ly/1XXnBOI
- What Is Your Stress Level?: http://bit.ly/1SwNS5U

Supporting Someone who is Depressed⁸

In order to support someone who is struggling with depression, it's important to make sure you are educated about depression yourself! There are several online resources, such as www.nami.org or the Placer County Network of Care Health Library. Here are a few other things you can do to support someone who is dealing with mental health issues:

- If someone gives you permission to do so, help them set up a doctor's appointment
- Listen actively when someone needs to talk through something
- Ask how you can help someone with their daily life, such has helping with household chores or child care

Remember, while it's important to support someone struggling with depression, it is also important take care of yourself! Read more at http://placer.networkofcare.org/mh/library/article.aspx?hwid=ug4814#ug4815.

These are just a few things you can to do support someone struggling with mental health issues. To learn more, visit the Placer County Network of Care's Health Library (http://bit.ly/1WqDAr5).
